By Ben Pagliaro
Words inspired by Maya Angelou

Em            C            G            D    Em            C            G            D

If you don't like something, change it,    if you can't change it, change your attitude about it

Em            C            G            D    Em            C            G            D

If you don't like something, change it,    if you can't change it, change your attitude about it

Em    C            G            D

I don't like that I've got so much to do

I don't like that I don't have the time to make up something new

I don't like that I got no money I spent it before I knew

Em            C            D

What it was like to live month to month, April, May to June

Em            C            D

This voice in my head speaks the truth, it says: "If you don't like something..."

I don't like that in the mirror what I see Is a collection of those parts I'm not proud of

Why can't I be okay with looking just like me,

Em            C            D

Every once in a while strutting my stuff

Em            C            D

This voice inside my head knows I'm enough, it says: "If you don't like something..."

I don't like that I can't always remember, So I write it down and I hope it stays

I don't like that I get lost sometimes, I can't surrender

Em            C            D

To getting lost so I can learn to find my way

Em            C            D

This voice in my head knows just what to say, it says: "If you don't like something..."
